Essay Store. The Value Of Being A Media & Information Literate Individual Media & Information Literacy Recognizes The Primary Role f Media & Information In Our Everyday Lives.The Purpose Of Information & Media Literate Is To Engage In A Digital Society; One Needs To Be Able To Use,Understand,Inquire,Create,Communicate And Think Critically. It Is Important To Have Capacity To Effectively Access,Organize,Evaluate, And Create Messages In A Variety Of Forms.Information & Media Literacy Enables People To Interpret And Make Informed Judgement As Users Of Information & Media As Well As To Become Skillful Creators & Producers Of Information & Media Messages In Their Own Right. To Become A Media Literate Is Not To Memorize Facts Or Statistics About The Media But Rather To Learn,To Raise The Right Questions About What You Are Watching,Reading,Or Listening To And To Be Information Literate A Person Must Be Able To Recognize When Information Is Needed & Have The Ability To Locate,Evaluate,And Use Effectively The Needed Information.Students Are No Longer Limited To The Desktop Computer.Students Use Mobile Technologies To Graph A Mathematical Problem,Research A Question For Social Studies,Text Message An Expert For Information As Well As Send Homework To A Drop Box.Media & Information Literacy Therefore Is About Helping Students Become Competent, Critical, And Literate In All Media Forms So That They Control The Interpretation Of What They See Or Hear Rather Than Letting The Interpretation Control Them. Media and information literacy enhances the capacity of people to enjoy their fundamental human rights, in particular as expressed in Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which states that 'Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.' The main benefits of ML are that: 1. In the teaching and learning process it equips the teachers with enhanced knowledge to empower future citizens. 2. Media and information literacy imparts crucial knowledge about the functions of media and information channels in democratic societies, reasonable understanding about the conditions needed to perform those functions effectively and basic skills necessary to evaluate the performance of media and information providers in light of the expected functions. 3. A society that is media and information literate fosters the development of free, independent and pluralistic media and open information systems. Information Literacy: the importance of Information literacy is important for today's learners, it promotes problem solving approaches and thinking skills – asking questions and seeking answers, finding information, forming opinions, evaluating sources and making decisions fostering successful learners, effective contributors, confident individuals and responsible citizens. It is at the core of the Curriculum for Excellence and Literacy across learning experiences and outcomes – a responsibility of all practitioners. "Children and young people not only need to be able to read for information; they also need to be able to work out what trust they should place on the information and to identify when and how people are aiming to persuade or influence them." Curriculum for Excellence (2009) Literacy across learning Principles and practice paper They need to be able to identify what is real and relevant not just for school but for learning, life and work. Information literacy skills have been around for quite some time in different guises and several frameworks and definitions have been produced both nationally and internationally. Shigeru Aoyagi, Chief, Division of Basic Education, UNESCO, stated that: "For all societies, Information Literacy is becoming an increasingly important component of not only literacy policies and strategies, but also of global policies to promote human development." UNESCO (2003) Towards an Information Literate Society So what is Information Literacy?
