I think you have offered copies of these to others. I am also in southern California Tehachapi. Regards James conf They are about 3 Mb each. I think I got the others sent out. To be fair Ditch Witch tech support sent me the hardcopies for this long discontinued trencher at no charge. They are a stand up outfit. Personally I prefer everything electronically so I woulda scanned em anyway. You can PM me an email address that accepts attachments and I will get it right out to you. Shifting is a pain but lube seems to help. How much do you need for a copy of each. Thank you Jeff I really need a copy of the manuals for it. If you could send me copies of the manuals you have I would really appreciate it. The upshot is redigging all those trenches out by hand with a contractors shovel, or cobbling up something that allows the CUT to help with the chore. Neither have turned out well for me. Rain also disperses or compacts your backfill. So, I bought a trencher off of Craigs List. The rope start kicks it on first pull every time so far. It was well cared for and homeserviced. Attachment 311511 Shifting forward and reverse is a little tricky. I can share one painful way not to do it, but it works pretty well once you get the hang of it. I can run an easy 2 deep when and wherever I want, and its at least a little more maneuverable in some of the tighter places. You trench in the reverse creeper gear, and once its all going you can sit down and watch. It will just pull a straight line unless you hit something you should have known was there. Or an undocumented rock. If anyone else has one, I have scanned the owners manual and have the parts book as well. Its been out of production since at least 99. I have finally got my pipes from the well to the house and under the driveway, courtesy of a rental UnderWonder and am finally making some real progress.
