The lint filter gathers fluff and fibres from clothes and needs to be cleaned after every drying cycle. The lint filter is located on the rim of the door.

<http://schlammatlas.de/en/node/16420>

Remove the lint gathered on the screens by hand or with a soft cloth. If the filter is heavily clogged, wash it under the tap with warm water. Before placing the filter back in its housing, give the housing itself a wipe as lint might also gather in this area. This piece is called a filter drawer in heat pump dryers and a condenser filter in condenser tumble dryers. These filters catch fluff and fibres that seep through the lint filter. They need to be cleaned periodically or when the filter drawer cleaning warning symbol lights up if available. The filter drawer can be opened further by pressing the red button. You can also use your vacuum cleaner on a low suction power. Finally, there's a thin piece of sponge between the screens. Take the sponge out and wash it under the tap with warm water. Hold it under the shower head for a few minutes. Try to run the water from all sides and get the fluff out. Place the filter drawer or the condenser in its housing and latch the locks. Finally, close the kick plate cover. Overloading the appliance will affect performance and may prevent laundry from drying completely. If you suspect this to be the case, run the appliance with a lighter load. If you're having trouble finding your manual, download it here using your product's model number. To
